Autism Lesson Plan

By: Kyle Mendenhall

Objective: To improve overall social skills

Teacher and at least two students will role play what personal space means-staying out of others personal space/bubble, not getting to close to a teacher or peer’s face.

After completing this, students will watch an Alice World where two people start out in someone else’s personal space. Then the two people practice appropriate personal space by staying in their own bubble throughout the conversation.

Different social situations can be added to the Alice World.

This lesson plan can be used to work with Autism children to help emphasize social skills needed in everyday life.
